Photo History

December 2007 to February 2008
(Volume 20)

December 2007 – (Volume 20)

A busy Christmas period, business-wise and once we had finished, Lynn and I decided to relax (if that is the right word) by getting the tube back up to town and leisurely doing some shopping….no watching the clock….no congestion charge and no bloody meters.

That is relaxing in my book.

We 'did' some shopping and then relaxed in a Soho bar and got some atmospheric shots of London in its Christmas finery….

Photo History

Debenhams in Oxford Street

Burlington Arcade, Piccadilly

Burlington Arcade, Piccadilly

In Bond Street

Photo History

Eight Maids a'milkin' …Fortnum's window displays….

Photo History

Love in London…

Cartier in Bond Street

Photo History

Waterstones in Piccadilly

Ralph Lauren in Bond Street

Bond Street

Diesel in Bond Street

Photo History

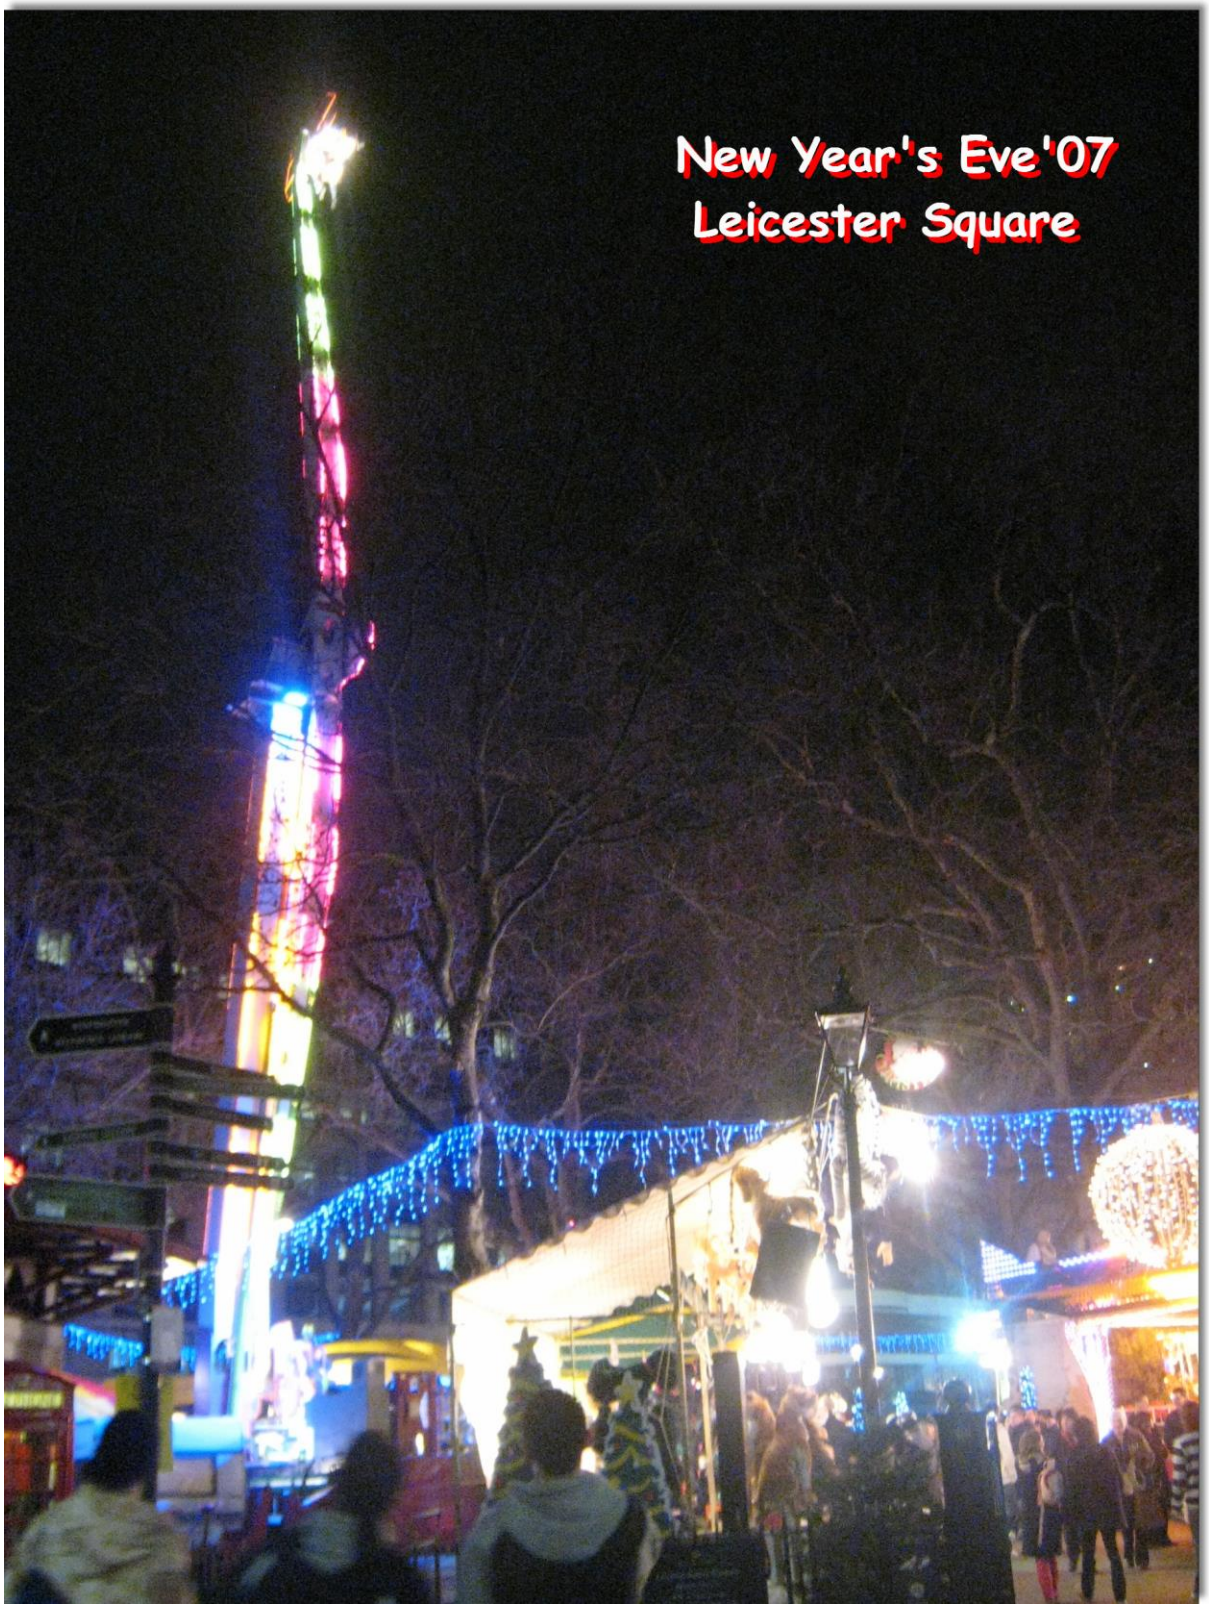
Happy Hour Cocktails

Happy Hour - Soho

Whitestone pond, Hampstead - Christmas 2007

Photo History

Photo History



New Year's Eve'07
Leicester Square

Photo History

Photo History

After a fascinating performance of light operetta in St. Martin in the Fields we went for a meal with Norma & Jeff and then enjoyed the fair in Leicester Square.

New Year's Eve'07

New Year's Eve'07

Photo History

2007

The decorated piazza of Covent Garden market

Ben Tammy and family en route to a function…

Angela and the kids are now living on the lovely estate of Orwell House on the banks of the Orwell. The kids seem very happy there and it is a delightful setting. The trampoline is well used and enjoyed and the kids and DP showed us around. (Angela had gone on a weekend course and we missed her)

The magic tree with its 'special decoration by the kids' with the house in the background

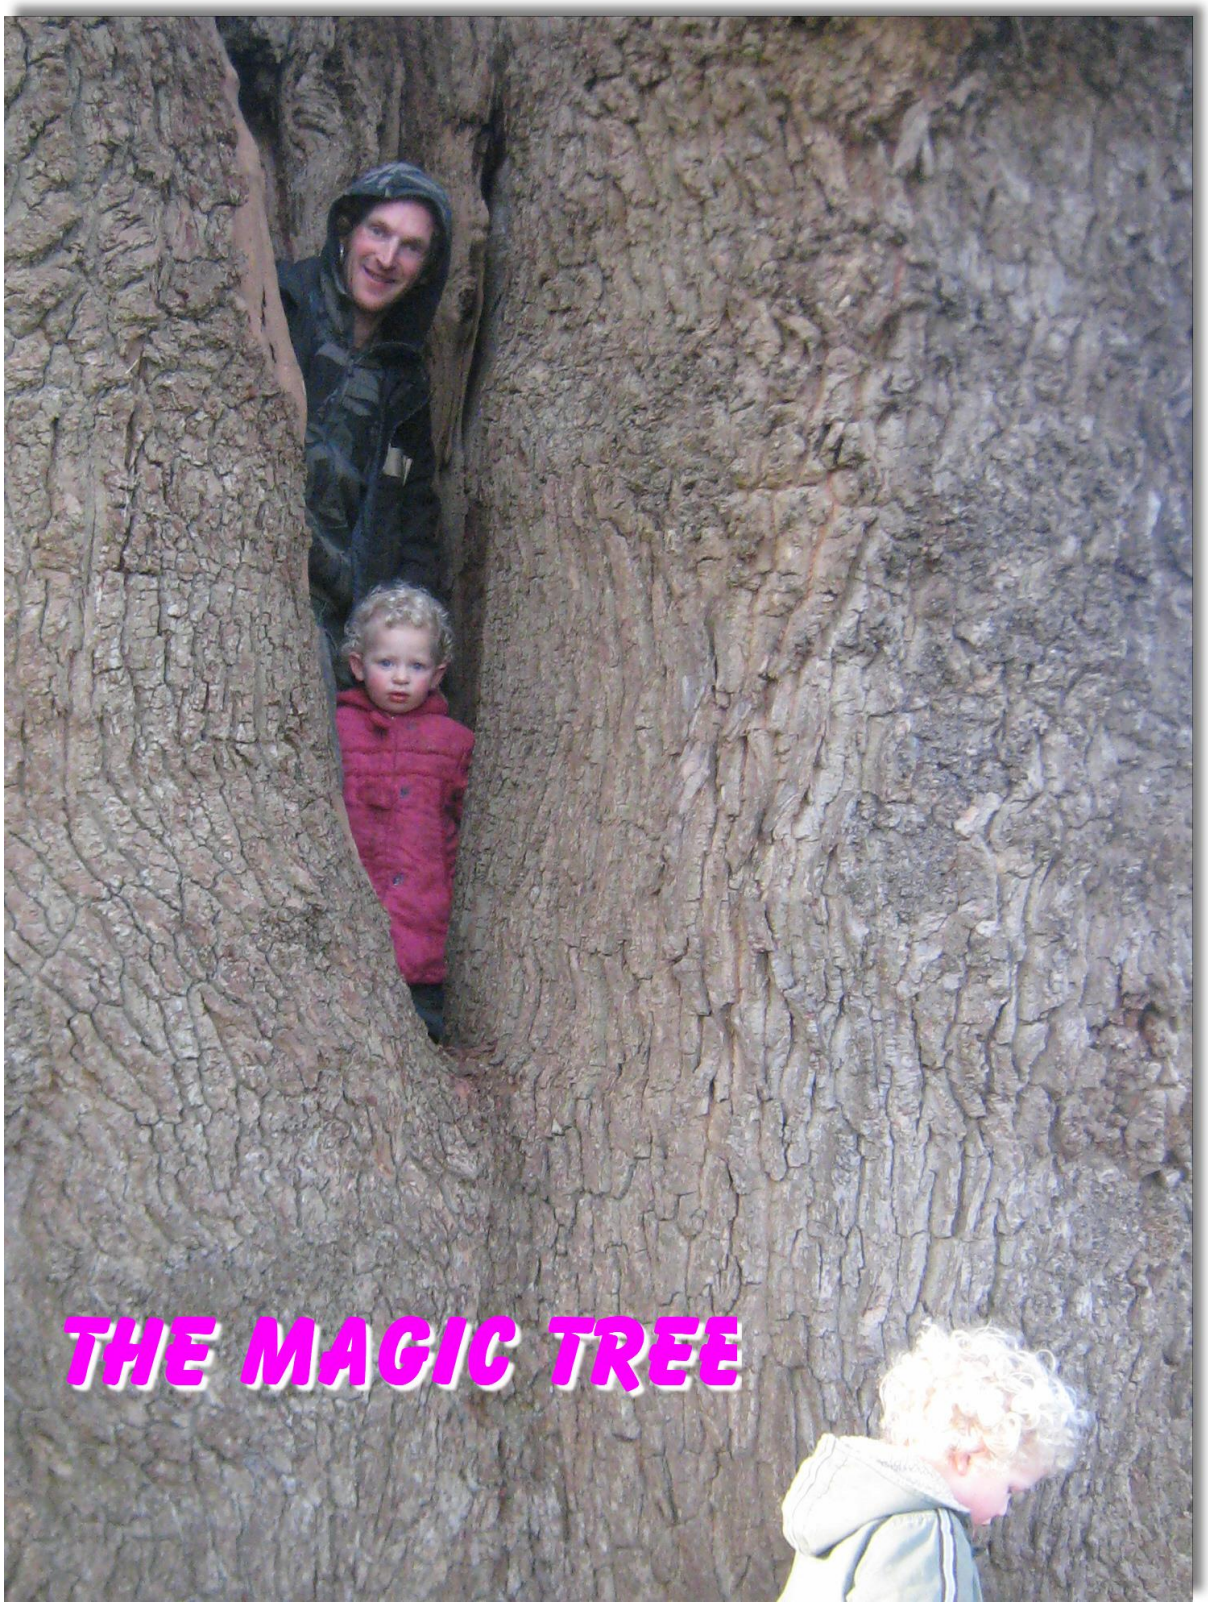
The children enjoying the trampoline with its circus tent cover…

The remains of a sunken boat on the shore

Beau showing Lynn the way along the shoreline

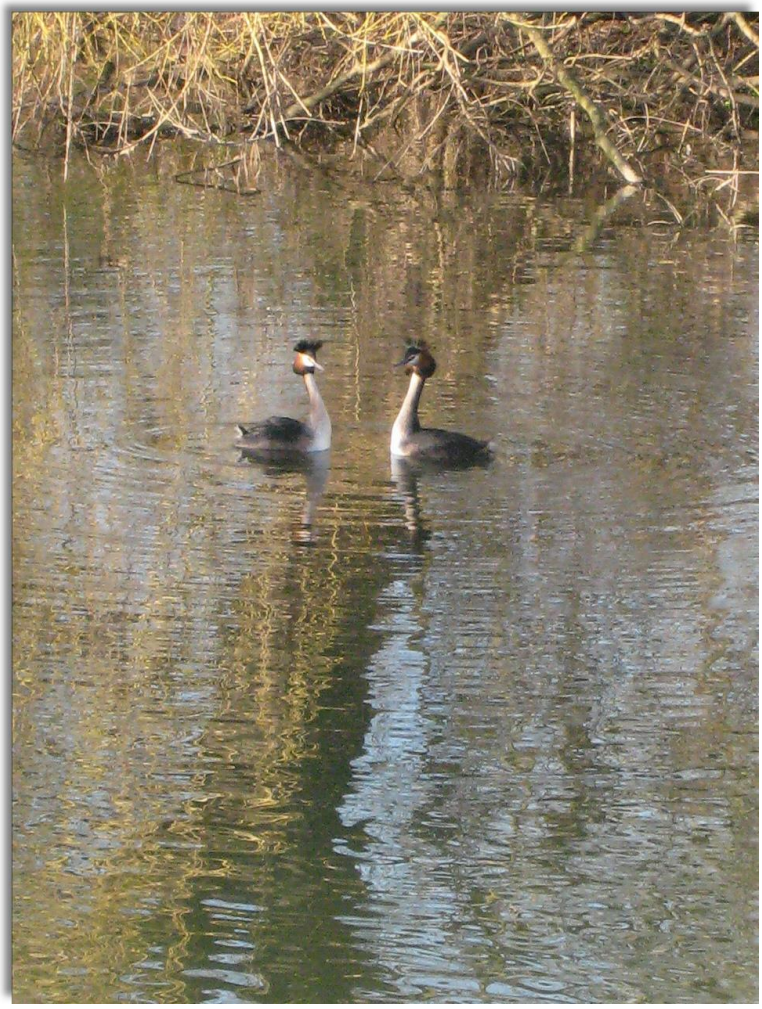
Photo History

Photo History



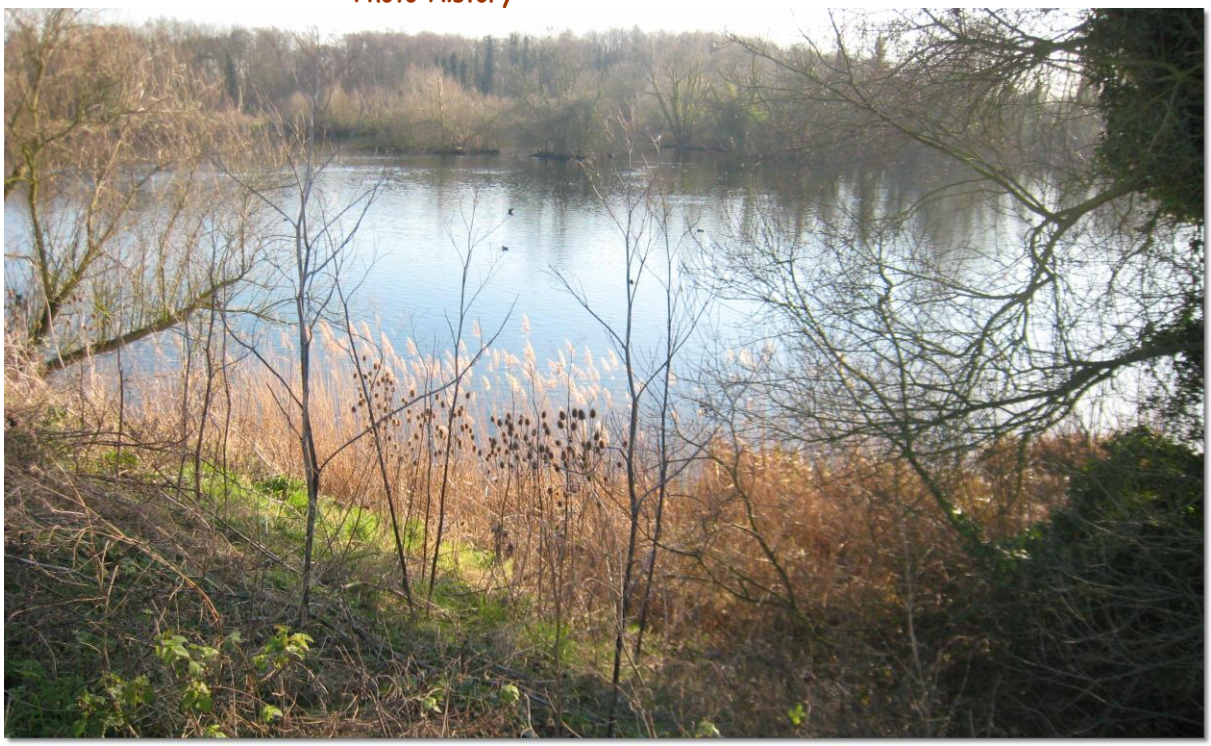
A great place to grow up, and fun parents to enjoy it with

We love to walk along the Lee Valley Country Park. It is a total contradiction. It is a long narrow park where the River Lee and the Lee Navigation canal go alongside one another with gravel pits that have naturalised over time (with help) to become delightful natural nature reserves, hides and water areas for wildlife. Even the pylons stretching into the distance have a certain attraction and one can walk for miles and see great wildlife and just enjoy nature close to home. We are aware of its growing popularity over the years and it is great to see families and others on bikes and walking (like us) with backpacks etc just enjoying the environment. When I look at the photos it is hard to remember that they are all so close to home….See Why? Just cos it's there, volume 12



The mating ritual

Photo History



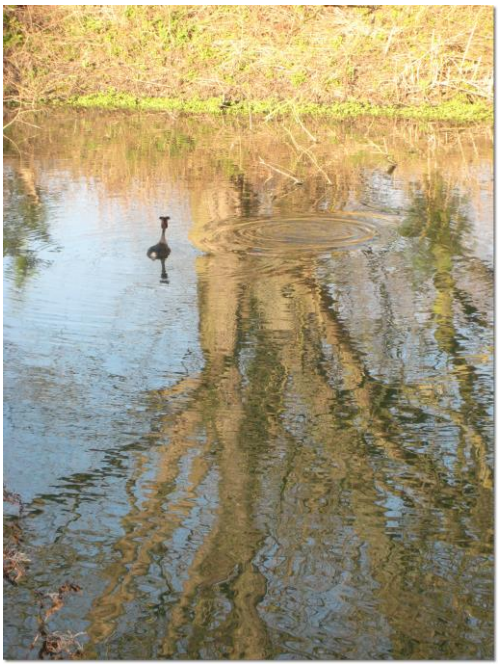


Photo History

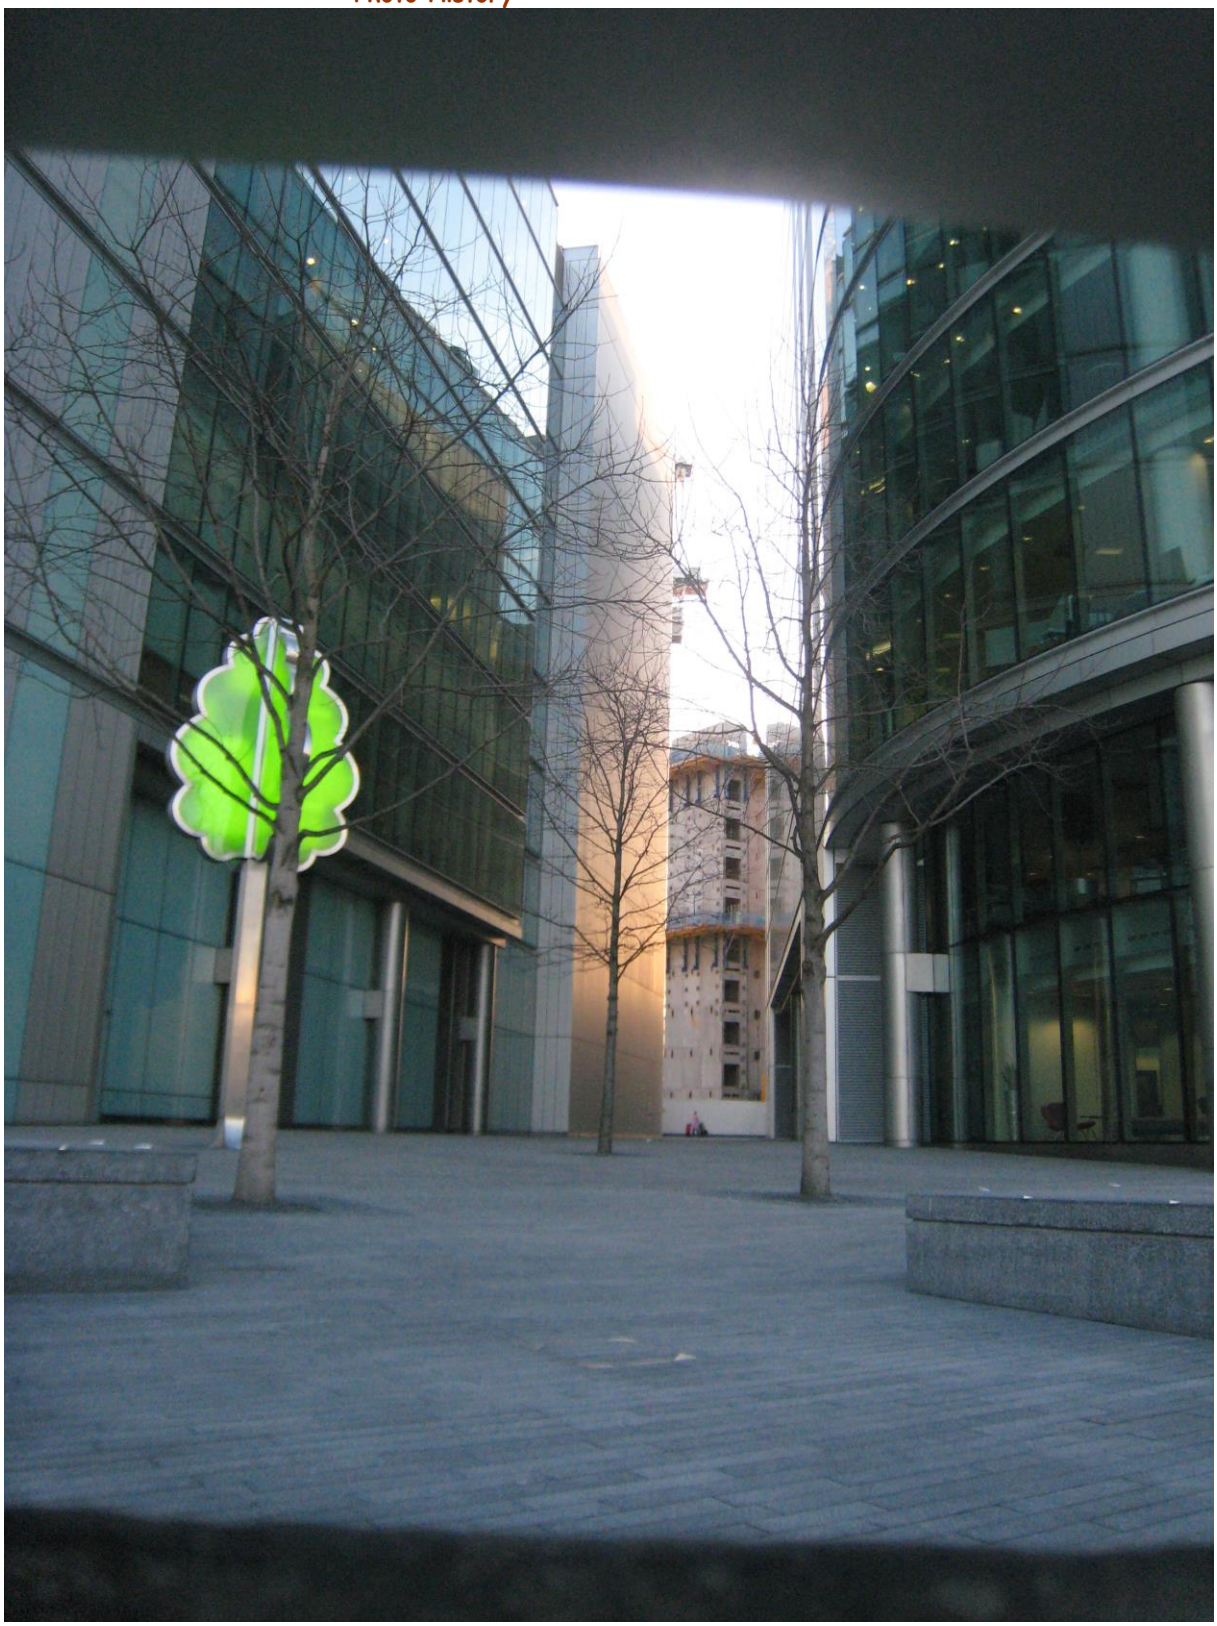
There is a special beauty in the well-frequented parts of London when no-one is around



More London, still under construction

Photo History

Making special biscuits

Photo History

Totally fascinated by the story Larnie was reading……

Family
breakfast

Kids section